

Life as an Upperclassman

Future Plans of Seniors

by Alex Campbell, Cade Carstens, and Austin Wiskus

Seniors at SCC are getting ready for their next adventures, and there are no two plans that are alike. Take Colten Mosbach for instances. He plans on going to a two-year college, but he's unsure which one he will go to. He knows for sure he wants to go to college for video game design. He also commented that his dream job would be a famous Twitch streamer.

On the other hand, Alex Campbell just joined the Army National Guard at the beginning of this year, and he plans on making that part of his career, along with being an architect. The National Guard is going to pay for his college, as well. He wants to go to Iowa Central to get his core classes done and then attend Iowa State University for architecture. Aspen Ellis also joined the army, but she is going into active duty, which means she has a better chance of getting deployed than Alex, but they both joined for the same reason to help defend and protect their country. Aspen plans on not going to college and just making a career of the army. Aspen's MOS, or military occupational specialty, is 13 F, which means she will be a fire support specialist. Her dream job is getting deployed overseas and working for the Army, and after that, she plans to come home to teach dance.

Another senior, Anastasia Sackfield, plans on going to the University of Chicago or the University of Minneapolis for animation. She says her dream job would probably have to be being a Pixar or Disney animator. Her friend, Ryan Brown, wants to go to the University of Iowa for pre-med. He plans on working alongside doctors when he gets out of college. Finally, Cade Carstens is hoping to go to Iowa State for criminal justice or become a high school coach/teacher. His dream job would either be a police officer or a high school football coach.

Juniors Reflect on the Semester

by Seth Stamp

The Juniors of SCC High School all have different favorite classes and least favorite classes. They also have different favorite parts of this year. Cole Kelly and Chase Pibal both enjoy math, because they like working with numbers. Subsequently, they both dislike history, because they are not as good at it. Meghan Dietrich's favorite class is anatomy; she enjoys the way Mr. Schaefer teaches the class. Her least favorite class is algebra, because she can't do math very well, but her favorite part of the year was cross country. She enjoys cross country because of the people and the running.

Matthew Martinez enjoys chemistry due to the labs, and dislikes English for the writing and reading involved. He really likes getting his Gans air 3x3 this year. Keely Hammen loves psychology. She likes how interesting the subject is in the way Mr. Knapp teaches the class. She doesn't like algebra, because it does not make sense to her. Her favorite part of the year is job shadowing

by Brendan Henkleman.

After high school, AJ plans on attending Iowa Central Community College to get his gen-eds done, and then he plans to transfer to a four year college and major in business. In high school, AJ has been involved in football for four years, basketball for four years, track for three years, and speech for one year. He was recently selected as an all-district honorable mention for football.

AJ's favorite pastime is playing sports with friends, which is the thing he will miss most about high school. His best memory about high school is the time during his sophomore year when the JV football team went eight to nothing.

In 10 years, AJ sees himself living in a house he built by the pond on his acreage now. He looks forward to college and getting to meet new people and have his freedom AJ's advice for underclassmen is to take a lot of college credit classes, because it "pays off."

Sydney Batz

By: Myk Schoop

Sydney is planning to attend Northwestern College. While there, she plans to run track and cross country while studying psychology. Sydney would eventually like to become an equine assisted Psychotherapist.

Sydney's best memories in high school include sports events and hanging out with her friends, not only inside the school but also outside. Sydney is involved in Cross Country, track, FFA, NHS, and 4-H. Being around her close friends every day is what Sydney is going to miss the most about high school. She's looking forward to being able to be out on her own.

Sydney enjoys watching the movie Top Gun, and when asked where she wants to travel, it didn't take long for her to say, "somewhere where it's warm and has a beach. I would love to go to Hawaii." Her advice to underclassmen is to get their homework done and don't mess around, and also to enjoy high school while it lasts; it goes by really fast. .

Joe Snyder

By: Keaton Hammen

Joe Snyder is a senior at South Central Calhoun High School this year. Joe works at the Lohrville locker after school and on the weekends. Joe has been involved in football for three years, but did not participate this year.

When asked, Joe said he is going to miss his friends the most after high school. After high school, Joe says he will not be going to college; he plans on going straight into the workforce after school. Joe says the thing he is looking forward to the most is all the paychecks.

In ten years, Joe plans on living in Lohrville and working at the locker. Joe is inspired by his mom because she works very hard and loves him greatly. The one place Joe wants to travel to before he dies is Texas. His advice to underclassmen is to try hard in school, because it does matter.

Kelsi Carlson

by Aspen Ellis

Kelsi Carlson is planning on attending Iowa State University for Agriculture Communications next fall. In her high school years, Kelsi spent it very actively throughout sports and in the community. She participated in volleyball, basketball, golf, softball, FFA, vocal, jazz choir, and student council. She has held many leadership positions including the FFA's vice president and the senior class president.

Kelsi's favorite memory of high school is the experience as a whole. Getting to meet people and friends throughout sports and activities the past four years has made it a success. Kelsi's advice to underclassmen is to be kind to everyone, because you never know what their story is, and to use your time wisely; four years go by way faster than you think, so make the absolute most of them.

After graduation has passed, Kelsi will miss the people of this great school and community. She feels so blessed to be surrounded by such supportive people. Kelsi is ready for her next chapter into Ag Communications, and we wish her the best of luck!

Tanner Campbell

By: Alex Campbell

Tanner Campbell is a leader in the classroom and on the football field. He loves football, especially defense. He plays middle linebacker. Why? He is a hard hitter and leads the defense. In addition, Tanner is also out for wrestling.

Tanner's favorite high school memory was being in Mr. Voith's algebra class; Tanner loves Mr. Voith's humor and the way he taught his class. After high school, he is planning on going to NWICC, Northwest Iowa Community College, in Sheldon. He is going to major in electrical engineering. In 10 years, he sees himself either as a power lineman or still working at TADD, a hog confinement north of Lake City. Tanner has been working there for about five years. His advice to underclassmen would be to just have fun.
